The need for Standards, Education and Qualifications in the Investment Migration Industry

More than ever before the global Investment Migration (IM) industry needs to demonstrate transparency, responsibility, high standards of integrity and enhanced due diligence processes, given the levels of scrutiny, comment and challenge currently being experienced.

As the IM industry matures and its popularity continues to develop there is a pressing need to demonstrate that the industry can regulate itself and conduct itself in an appropriate and professional manner.

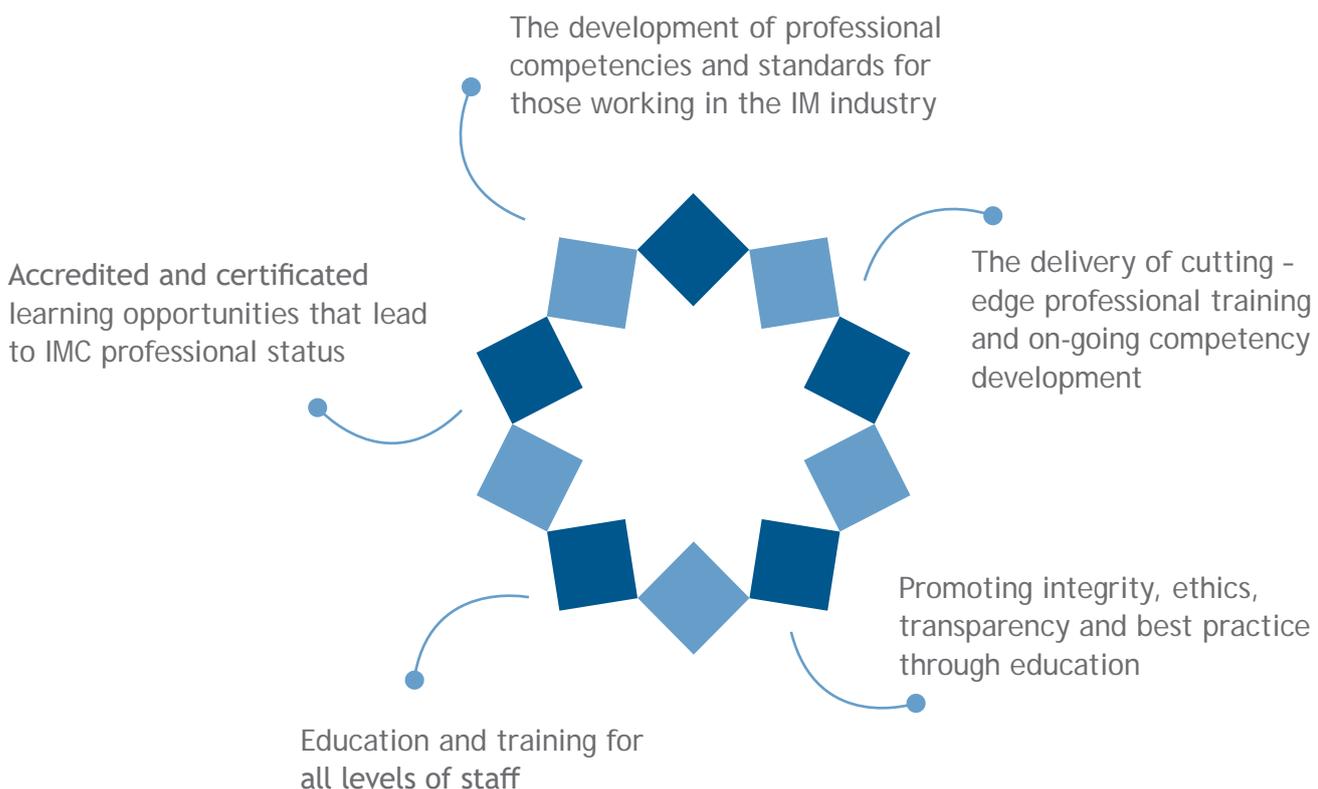

The IMC through its core objectives is a channel that can be used to gather all areas of the industry together to help establish professional standards, benchmarks, competencies, codes of conduct and best practice for those working in or associated with the industry.

The professionalisation of the industry via entry to the IMC by formal qualifications and experience is to be a cornerstone of responsible growth and development for the future and should be welcomed by all those within and those evaluating the status and value of the IM industry.

The IMC have created an Education and Training Division that has been mandated with the task of creating an Education and Training framework for the industry.

The objectives of the IMC Education and Training division (IMCET)

IMCET Qualification Structure and Levels

Certification in Investment Migration: Cert (IM)

4-6 month course (Level - Fundamentals/ Intermediate)

Diploma in Investment Migration: Dip (IM)

1 year course (Level - Advanced/ Professional)

Post-Graduate Diploma in Investment Migration: PG Dip (IM)

1 year course (Level - Expert/ Experienced Practitioner)

The new framework of Education and Training that has been created by the IMC will cater for all levels of background and experience, and the courses will be delivered by IMC Education and Training (IMCET).

Current experienced practitioners in the industry will be eligible to continue with their professional membership or upgrade to Fellowship of the IMC.

By benchmarking those who are advisors and practitioners in the industry, (and who are committed to competency, standards and integrity), the level of professionalism and reputation of the industry will be enhanced.

All of the new range of IMC qualifications and training courses are designed to enhance the technical knowledge, competencies and expertise of those working in or associated with the industry.

The IMCET courses and training will be delivered through a flexible range of learning methods to enable individuals to study in a way that assists their lifestyle. The qualifications and training courses are international in content and focus but will involve a study of a number of individual country specific IM programs and common industry issues in order to give a complete overview of the workings of the industry.

Each course will be provided via the IMCET world class on-line Learning Management System, supported by:

- Course manuals produced by industry experts
- Webinars
- Digital Learning and case studies
- Workshops (face-to-face or virtual)
- Formal Assessments

The first of the new qualifications and training programmes will be available from the second quarter of 2019. For more information contact imcet@investmentmigration.org

IMCET Qualification Framework

What is the right course for me?

1. Familiarise yourself with the three levels of qualification and look at content, level, duration and method of assessment.
2. Each of the three qualifications are standalone qualifications in their own right.
3. If you have not studied for a number of years or you do not have previous qualifications or have little or no experience of IM, you should start with the Certification level.
4. Ask yourself the following questions:
 - What is my level of education - what qualifications if any, do I possess?
 - What prior experience if any, do I have working in the Investment Migration industry?
 - What prior experience do I have if any, working in areas of business, other than IM?
 - What is my current job role?
 - What career aspirations do I have, if any, within the IM or related sectors?
 - What competencies (skills, knowledge and behaviour) do I currently possess?
 - Are there any competency gaps in my current knowledge and experience?
 - Will my employer fund the cost of my qualification or will I be self-funding?

By mapping the answers to these questions to the qualification alternatives, you should have a good idea and be able to determine which, is the appropriate course to study.

The Certification programme will be the first level of programme to be launched (early in second quarter 2019) and we recommend that this is the most appropriate course for the majority of people working in the industry given that, it is the first global qualification of its type available in the IM sector.
